SCC 150,000, Silver Award for Milk Quality

"We were using Udder Comfort™ spray bottles as needed in the parlor. Then we got the Udder Comfort Battery-Operated Backpack Sprayer at the 2023 World Dairy Expo and are able to do several proactive applications in the 2 weeks before they calve," says Sarah Roy, partner with her father Doug Warner at Norwood Centennial Farms, Charlevoix, Michigan. The closed all-A2 Holstein herd includes polled. Recent production is 124.6 lbs. energy-corrected milk and 150,000 SCC.

"Applying Udder Comfort in the pens as they're getting ready to calve puts us ahead of the game.

We spend way less money and time on treatments, have far fewer issues, and are not needing as much spray in the parlor now," she says.

Doug lives on the farm, operating the 160-cow dairy with good employees. Sarah manages the business side, navigating the future with consumer-facing diversification. "Udder Comfort is worth its weight in gold. In today's world of product ads, this one lives up. Using it proactively before calving makes a noticeable difference, especially for heifers. Everything is new to them. Now they are less anxious, loosened up, and ready to go," she says.

Dairy farmer survey request has $$$ value

HARRISBURG, Pa. – Time is running out for Pennsylvania dairy producers to complete the 2025 Dairy Producer Survey. All dairy farm owners are encouraged to complete the survey by April 30th to share their input on how the latest changes in the dairy industry impact their business.

The data collected through the survey will be used to shape future grant opportunities, programs, and overall resources that support Pennsylvania dairy businesses. The Center for Dairy Excellence and Penn State Extension are collaborating on the survey to study how dairy industry dynamics impact Pennsylvania dairy farm families.

The 2025 Dairy Producer Survey includes questions about the following areas of business for Pennsylvania dairy farmers:

- Demographics
- Marketing and Replacements
- Employees and Protocols
- Facilities and Operation
- Future Plans
- Investments
- Risk Management
- Biosecurity Protocols
- Climate-Smart Initiatives

All survey responses will be anonymous, and the survey is expected to take approximately 15 minutes to complete. Visit www.centerfordairyexcellence.org/2025-dairy-producer-survey to take the survey by April 30, 2025. Producers can complete the survey digitally, or print a copy and mail it back to the Center for Dairy Excellence.

Contact Valerie Mason-Faith at vmason@centerfordairyexcellence.org or call (717) 550-8720 with questions about the survey.

'Here's to an impressive era of prosperity ...'

"Here's to an impressive era of prosperity for our farmers and ranchers, and the incredible work of the Copenhaver family on this beautiful dairy farm, and all of our dairy farmers across America. Bottoms up," said USDA Secretary Brooke Rollins, leaning in for the whole milk toast with Sen. Dave McCormick and Rep. Dan Meuser (foreground) and (I-r) beside her Stacey Copenhaver, Brent Copenhaver, and Rep. Glenn 'GT' Thompson, with Dave Smith tipping his milk to the toast behind them. WayHar Farms of Bernville provided the milk for the Secretary's tour stop at Talview Dairy near Annville in Lebanon County, Pa. Please turn to pages 12-13 to read and see more about Secretary Rollins' high-profile visit to Pennsylvania Dutch Country.

Pre-holiday cull cow, bull calf prices jump

In pre-holiday trade, the market for cull cows jumped $4 to $8 per 100 pounds liveweight with Breakers at $141.75; Boners $139.85; and Lean $129.85. Both Holstein and dairy-beef crossbred bull calves jumped $75 as 90 to 120 pound straight Holsteins averaged $925 and dairy-on-beef calves $1185.

Synthetic whey-maker sued

Food biotechnology company Perfect Day claims its synthetic whey protein "ProFerm" contains "animal-free dairy proteins" that are "identical to those found in cow's milk" and have "a smaller environmental footprint than conventional whey protein isolate." The Organic Consumers Association has sued Perfect Day on behalf of themselves and the general public, alleging "false, unfair, and deceptive marketing" violates the District of Columbia Consumer Protection Procedures Act (CPPA). Big dairy companies, like Nestle, are using these proteins in some products, the suit alleges. The fake dairy protein analog is made from DNA-altered yeast or fungus grown in fermentation vats. Their excrement is harvested and dried. Testing by the plaintiffs reportedly shows this synthetic whey lacks key amino acids and nutrients found in the whey from real milk. Their testing also identified the presence of fungal proteins not tested for human diets.

Milk futures mostly higher

Class III milk futures were mixed this week, closing Wed., April 16 higher on the front and back ends but lower in the middle. Class IV futures were modestly higher across the board. On the close Wed., April 16, Class III milk futures averaged $17.86 for the next 12 months, Apr25-Mar26, erasing last week's average loss — up 8 cents from the prior Wednesday. The 12-month average for Class IV milk futures gained back half of last week's loss at $18.54, up 14 cents.

Spot dairy product markets recover

The dairy product spot prices on the CME daily cash market recovered this week on everything except the dry whey price. Cheese blocks and barrels led the rally with a gain of about a dime. This came on the heels of the Global Dairy Trade (GDT) biweekly auction reporting a 1.6% increase in the all products index Tuesday, April 14, with butter, butterfat, whole milk powder, mozzarella and lactose leading the way.

On Wed., April 16, the CME 40-lb block Cheddar price was pegged at $1.8250/lb, up 12 cents from the prior Wednesday with 24 loads trading over 5 days. The 500-lb barrel cheese price at $1.8750/lb gained a dime with 14 loads trading. Dry whey lost a half-cent at 47 1/2 cents/lb with 11 loads changing hands

Butter volume more than doubled at 54 loads in the face of an uptrending market with the price pegged Wednesday at $2.34/lb, up 3 cents from the prior week. While gaining back what was lost last week, the CME spot clearing price remains discounted to the global price by 40% -- a $1.14/lb difference.

Zero nonfat dry milk (NFDM) was traded this week. The last trades to gavel were 4 loads on Thurs., April 10, when the price moved a penny higher at $1.1675/lb. From Friday April 11 through Wed., April 16, buyers and sellers were sidelined with bids $1.15 to $1.1550/lb and offers $1.17 to $1.1750/lb. So, the price stayed at $1.1675 – up a penny from the prior Wednesday.

March SUPs and component pounds decline

FMMO blend prices were announced for March (above), and they were lower for all 11 FMMOs across the board, along with a notable drop in butterfat and protein percentage, combining to knock $2 or more off the mailbox milk prices.

Easter weekend meets eastern spring flush

Butter churns are churning and Easter weekend approaches. The USDA Dairy Market News Eastern Fluid Milk and Cream Report for April 16 indicates milk is backing up and cream is hard to move. The Easter holiday weekend being later this year coincides with spring flush near or at peak in most of the East, but a few weeks off further north. The report indicates the backlog should settle out after the holiday. Meanwhile, Class I demand is steady, and other Classes are pulling more milk than usual.

In the Southeast and Florida, milk production is in the midst of spring flush, and handlers suggest supplies are in "good balance with Class I bottling needs. Most milk needs are getting filled by local sources, and only a few loads are shipped in from outside the region."

USDA Dairy Market News also reported last Friday that retail demand for butter and cheese is faring well, but foodservice demand is a bit off. This is in line with the University of Michigan's recent "Consumer Sentiment Index" that was lower than expected and the biggest Feb. to March drop recorded.

Uncertainty and patience

There is a great deal of uncertainty right now for farmers and consumers, alike. In this day and age of instant-everything, what is patience? Defined by Websters, patience is "the capacity to accept or tolerate delay, trouble, or suffering without getting angry or upset." When patience brings determination instead of paralysis, the hope is for success.

On the subject of trade, patience gets jarred by changing conditions, but the conditions have already been changing, slowly enough to feel like certainty. On the one hand, uncertainty is better than certain doom, right? On the other hand, if something is wrong and a plan is executed to make it right, no one knows the outcome until it is seen past its uncertainty. That's called risk. And risk requires patience, a plan, and faith beyond the moment, beyond man or government.

Maybe the real problem is struggling to have faith, or to understand a course of action and believe in it. That makes us susceptible to uncertainty.

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Brooke Rollins was in Pennsylvania April 14th. During her first stop at a Lebanon County dairy farm, the media had questions on how this "on again, off again" tariff deal is producing "uncertainty affecting farmers who need certainty." Farmers operate mostly in uncertainty on everything from the weather to markets.

Rollins said the President is leading "a complete realignment of the economy. But to get there, we have to make bold, hard decisions. This is transformative, but it is also disruptive. We believe it will be a short-term adjustment," she said, reviewing Trump's first term renegotiating USMCA and the Phase I China deal, which were then left "untended".

"The tariff regime we're living under, for decades, is not good for America," she said, noting the ag trade deficit went from zero to $49 billion in the past four years. She reported the number of countries coming to the table to negotiate trade deals grew to 175 last weekend.

Pledging to work to expand markets as well as reminding everyone that the President "has the backs of the farmers and ranchers," Rollins said they are already working on a plan with their partners in Congress to tap the CCC for economic relief "if during this period of uncertainty there are damaging consequences for farmers."

House Ag Committee Chairman GT Thompson agreed: "We'll be prepared to do that with the CCC, if necessary."

Meanwhile, energy prices are declining, and the value of the dollar has softened. There are positives and negatives in the latter.

On a completely different level, especially as this Easter season is upon us, we know there is more beyond this moment.

USDA cancels Biden-era climate slush fund, reprioritizes existing funding to farmers

WASHINGTON, D.C. – U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Brooke Rollins announced the cancellation of the Partnerships for Climate-Smart Commodities (PCSC) on Monday, April 14.

Following a thorough line by line review of each of these Biden era partnerships, it became clear that the majority of these projects had sky-high administration fees which in many instances provided less than half of the federal funding directly to farmers.

Select projects may continue if it is demonstrated that a significant amount of the federal funds awarded will go to farmers. "We continue to support farmers and encourage partners to ensure their projects are farmer focused or re-apply to continue work that is aligned with the priorities of this Administration. With this action, USDA is cutting bureaucratic red tape, streamlining reporting, lowering the paperwork burden on producers and putting farmers first," Secretary Rollins said.

"Additionally, we have reformed and overhauled the Biden-era Partnerships for Climate Smart Commodities initiative into the Advancing Markets for Producers (AMP) initiative, and the USDA has identified changes to align the initiative with current Trump Administration priorities. USDA will review existing grant agreements based on three Farmer First policy priorities:

- A minimum of 65% of federal funds must go to producers;
- Grant recipients must have enrolled at least one producer as of 12/31/2024; and
- Grant recipients must have made a payment to at least one producer as of 12/31/2024.

"The Partnerships for Climate-Smart Commodities initiative was largely built to advance the green new scam at the benefit of NGOs, not American farmers," said Secretary Rollins.

"The concerns of farmers took a backseat during the Biden Administration. "During my short time as Secretary, I have heard directly from our farmers that many of the USDA partnerships are overburdened by red tape, have ambiguous goals, and require complex reporting that push farmers onto the sidelines. We are correcting these mistakes and redirecting our efforts to set our farmers up for an unprecedented era of prosperity."

USDA will contact current partners individually to provide information about their future participation. USDA will honor all eligible expenses incurred prior to April 13, 2025. This reform effort will utilize existing funding, with no new funding made available for these partnerships.

Shift in trade policy risks long-term loss of trust with global market partners, CoBank says

DENVER — According to a new quarterly report from CoBank's Knowledge Exchange, the potential for prolonged trade disputes with Mexico, Canada and China threatens the outlook for U.S. dairy demand. Combined, the three countries account for one-half of all U.S. dairy exports. Market uncertainty has sent futures contracts tumbling. From early January to early April, April-to-June Class III milk futures fell by $2.57 per cwt. Class IV dropped even further, losing $2.73 over 100 days.

Despite the headwinds, dairy continues to have some bright spots, most notably lower feed prices.

Animal protein

Record high prices across the beef cattle sector remain amid continuing herd liquidation and delayed rebuilding. Despite volatility in the U.S. cattle herd, the beef sector has been able to maintain production to meet strong consumer demand. Through the third week of March, U.S. beef production was up slightly compared to 2024. Weekly dressed cattle weights have pushed 3% to 6% higher than a year ago, hitting a record 882 lbs. per head in late January. Packer margins remain squeezed as feeder cattle prices are continuing their upward trajectory.

Strong broiler prices and low inventory levels are fueling optimism in the poultry sector. Production metrics have yielded a moderately favorable outlook for 2025. Chick placements are up 2.5% year-to-date. Breast meat prices have been on the rise. But with beef prices chasing record highs, food service outlets have ample incentive to center feature activity on white meat chicken. That bodes well for broiler integrators and consumers as the chicken segment tends to attract shoppers seeking value.

Grains, farm supply and biofuels

Uncertainty over trade and biofuel policy pulled corn, soybean and wheat prices down last quarter, despite the tailwind of a weakening U.S. dollar. Trade concerns weighed most heavily on wheat prices as world buyers have multiple exporters at their disposal. U.S. grain stocks on March 1 revealed a strong usage pace for corn and soybeans, but wheat usage continued to fall. Farmers intend to plant the largest corn acreage in the U.S. since 2013 as corn offers the greatest margin opportunity.

Crop production expenses are expected to continue trending downward, but they remain elevated in relation to lower commodity prices. While fertilizer prices have fallen, last year's wet fall will require heavier spring applications and rising corn acreage signals more demand for nitrogen.

Ag retailers and farm supply cooperatives head into the spring agronomy season facing labor challenges and obstacles sourcing crop chemicals from China. Growth in biologicals remains a bright spot for cooperatives.

Renewable diesel and biodiesel production has scaled back to find stability in the absence of the blender's tax credit, pushing prices above petroleum. Domestic production was down 41% year-over-year for January and February as margin pressure exceeded projections. Establishment of the renewable volume obligations under the Renewable Fuel Standard and decisions on the Clean Fuel Production Credit will largely determine the trajectory of biofuels demand and production.

U.S. economic outlook

Consumer and business sentiment regarding the U.S. economic outlook continues to deteriorate after dropping sharply over the past few months. Rapidly worsening expectations about everything – from inflation and personal income to business and labor market conditions – are elevating concerns among business owners, investors and consumers alike.

So far, the hard data on key economic indicators like unemployment, job creation, weekly payrolls and consumer expenditures suggest the U.S. economy remains fairly strong. Even the recent stock market pullback is a symptom of flagging confidence about the future rather than a reflection of current business performance. The question on the minds of investors, businesses and corporate boards is whether the declining expectations will soon translate into slower spending and tightening profit margins.

According to a new quarterly report from CoBank's Knowledge Exchange, the answer to that question will likely come into view by the end of June, if not sooner. Historic data

HARRISBURG, Pa. - The Dairy Excellence Foundation will host its annual farm-to-fork celebration, "A Toast to Dairy," on Thursday, June 12, 2025 from 6-9 p.m. at Melhorn Manor, 977 West Main Street, Mount Joy, Pa.

The event includes meal stations sourced with Pennsylvania Preferred ingredients, a selection of artisan cheeses, locally crafted wines and brews, and other networking activities. Individuals who purchase tickets by May 1 will receive an earlybird discount with $10 off each ticket.

"We look forward to our annual 'A Toast to Dairy' event every year to catch up with colleagues and friends, meet new faces across the industry, and ultimately, support the next generation of dairy through our Foundation's scholarships, internships and dairy education programs," said Emily Barge, communications and marketing manager at the Dairy Excellence Foundation. "We'll have the PA Preferred food and artisan cheese that this event is known for along with fun activities and surprises to make the evening memorable for everyone who attends."

The event will feature guided, interactive cheese tastings paired with chocolate-themed food and beverages, a dessert bar, and samples from local wineries, breweries and distilleries. Attendees will receive a tasting passport to enjoy samples at each stop. The event will also include raffles, live music hour, a caricature artist, an outdoor courtyard, and opportunities to network with individuals from the dairy community and beyond.

"This is one of the 'must attend' events of the year, and it supports a great cause. It's a great event to meet with other folks that have similar interests in supporting our agricultural community, and specifically, the Dairy Excellence Foundation. It's a very enjoyable evening with great activities. Of course, the food is excellent as well," said Frank Campbell who regularly attends the event.

Approximately 375 people attended the event last year and helped support the Foundation's efforts to expose students of all ages to agriculture and dairy farming.

The cost is $85 per person. Individuals who purchase tickets by May 1 will receive $10 off each ticket. Additional discounts are available for group purchases of eight or more tickets.

To purchase tickets: Visit centerfordairyexcellence.org/ toasttodairy or call the Foundation at 717-346-0849.

To sponsor the event, email Jayne Sebright at jsebright @centerfordairyexcellence.org or call 717-346-0849.

suggests that declines in consumer spending begin to become apparent three to five months after a sharp decline in economic sentiment. Consumer spending accounts for about 70% of all U.S. economic activity.

"Not including the brief pandemic-related recession, which was overwhelmed by massive government stimulus, the previous three U.S. recessions in 1990, 2000 and 2007 were all forewarned by weakening sentiment that led to a steep decline in consumer spending," said Rob Fox, director of CoBank's Knowledge Exchange. "The next set of hard data from reports on retail sales and consumer spending should begin to provide some guidance as to which way the economy is heading."

Until recently, most observers viewed the administration's tariff campaign as a short-term negotiating tactic. It now appears a primary objective is to bring more manufacturing capabilities back within U.S. borders, which will take time. But unpredictable tariff policy could stand in the way of achieving that goal, as businesses are unlikely to invest millions or billions of dollars based on expectations of a policy that's subject to change at any moment.

Food & beverage

Food and beverage manufacturers are revising their sales and earnings expectations downward as consumer sentiment has soured. Prices remain a top concern for consumers, who continue to pull back on grocery spending. More than 80% of U.S. consumers anticipate tariffs will raise prices, with groceries expected to see the highest increases. Recognizing that more price increases could lead to volume attrition, food and beverage manufacturers are aiming to improve efficiencies and demonstrate value.

Growth in private label grocery sales, which reached record levels in 2024, is expected to continue.

U.S. government affairs

With the whole country watching the impact of President Trump's sweeping tariffs, Congress has yet to act on this economic gambit. Currently equity and commodity markets are weakening, and the patience of the American people is being tested. Many individuals and businesses are hoping to see the tax law extended, several industries need meaningful immigration reform, and agriculture still demands a Farm Bill. The American public will ultimately demand a functioning Congress.

Heifers wanted for KWYB Sale, market remains super strong

STATE COLLEGE, Pa — The search is on again for more Holstein heifers! The next "Know What You Buy" Heifer Sale is set for Thursday, May 15, at 10 a.m. at the Pemnnsylvania Holstein Association Farm, 1806 River Road, Middletown.

"The cattle market continues to be strong because there's brisk demand for bred and open recipient heifers. Our last three (2024) sales, in July, September, and November, yielded fantastic results with all sales averaging more than $2050. The March, 2025 sale averaged over $2425! Increased demand means improved prices! If you have extra heifers now is the time to sell!" proclaims David Lentz, PHA's marketing director and executive director.

The sale is accepting heifers of all ages and stages from close springers due early June (instant milk) to 5-month-old calves. The market favors springers and ready to breed heifers.

It is called the "Know What You Buy" Heifer Sale because at least 95% of the heifers will have Sire ID, if not Registered. There is a bonus if heifers are bred to sexed semen. Also, there will be a payback if your heifers are tested negative for leucosis. Full pedigrees are sought after too.

If you are a dairy producer or heifer raiser from the Mid-Atlantic region or other parts of the United States and have heifers to sell, then please contact PHA today at director@paholsteins.com or 717-329-9202.

USJersey events

Sponsorship opportunities are available and welcome

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Sponsorship opportunities are still available for the annual meetings of the American Jersey Cattle Association (AJCA) and National All-Jersey Inc. (NAJ), which will be held June 25-28, at the Embassy Suites-UK Coldstream in Lexington, Ky.

To join the growing list of sponsors, contact the AJCA at info@usjersey.com to promote your brand and be seen by Jersey breeders from across the United States.

It will be a week to celebrate Kentucky heritage – Jerseys, Bluegrass, Thoroughbreds and Bourbon while in Lexington through a variety of events featuring Kentucky agriculture. Jersey enthusiasts and allied industry friends can enjoy networking with their peers for four days.

In addition to the AJCA annual membership meeting on Saturday, June 28, and the NAJ annual meeting on Friday, June 27, the USJersey organizations will recognize the award winners for Master Breeder, Distinguished Service, Meritorious Service and six Young Jersey Breeders.

USDA Secretary Rollins steps into the barn and up to the plate

By SHERRY BUNTING Special for Farmshine

ANNVILLE, Pa. – Imagine a crisp spring morning finishing up the milking chores and getting an extra pair of hands from – the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

That was the scene Monday, April 14, when USDA Secretary Brooke Rollins made the first stop in her full day in Pennsylvania at Talview Dairy near Annville. The Keystone State with the diversity and importance of agriculture and dairy was one she said was at the top of her list to visit in her first few months.

Farm owners Brent and Stacey Copenhaver got the heads up three days earlier from the "milkshake man", Dave Smith, after a call from Mike Firestine, working with Pennsylvania's own congressman -- U.S. House Ag Committee Chairman GT Thompson -- to set up farm tours for the Secretary before her participation with state ag leaders and lenders at a roundtable in Bird-in-Hand, Lancaster County, Pa. and other events.

All smiles as she stepped outside the milking center after 30 minutes inside with the Copenhaver family, she declared: "I milked some cows, and as you know, I am a big promoter of whole milk!"

She joined Rep. Thompson, Rep. Dan Meuser (R-PA-9), U.S. Senator David Mc-Cormick (R-PA), various staff, several farm organization leaders, area farmers, and a bevy of media for a walk up to the freestall barn.

With the Talview dairy herd as witnesses, the VIPs opened their whole milk bottles provided by Wayhar Farms of Bernville in neighboring Berks County to kick things off with a special milk toast led by Secretary Hollins to whole milk and the cows and dairy farmers across America who produce it.

Brent shared a bit about the farm, and Stacey, a high school ag teacher told the Secretary how alarming it is to see what teens are drinking, including energy drinks and soda.

"Can you believe this whole milk is not allowed in our schools?" Rep. Meuser observed.

"We've got a lot of changes to make," Sec. Rollins replied.

"USDA and HHS are reviewing the Dietary Guidelines, which we are changing this year," Sec. Rollins continued. "The guideline is fatfree or skim milk, so that's why the schools don't have the option of whole milk -- because it's not in the Dietary Guidelines! So we're going to change that, and of course there is also the legislation that you guys are working on."

Rep. Thompson, champion and prime sponsor of the Whole Milk for Healthy Kids Act, said legislation in 2010 tied the school meals, and other USDA food programs, directly to these Dietary Guidelines, "and it's all based on bad science and really driven by these members of the Dietary Guidelines Advisory Committee. We have provisions in the farm bill to make changes there. We want to put science back into it."

In the meantime, it's the whole milk bills -- H.R. 649 and S. 222 -- that will overturn the specific language from the 2010 legislation, where school milk choices were limited to fat-free and 1% low-fat.

Meuser also brought up the Dairy Pride Act: "Milk comes from animals not almonds and things of that nature. That's nut juice."

Lawmakers discussed how the lack of milk choice in schools and the lack of labeling integrity have impacted not just nutrition but also led to the steep loss of dairy farms over the past 15 years.

"We don't just lose the dairy farms," Rep. Thompson stressed. "We lose the businesses that support them. We lose the employees of those businesses, and then that starts to affect the grocery stores, the pharmacies, the roots of the community. Bad policy has a ripple effect. But despite all of that, dairy is still the number one commodity in Pennsylvania, where the number one industry is agriculture."

Reminding everyone how important it is to get the whole milk deal done, Bernie Morrissey with the Grassroots Pennsylvania Dairy Advisory Committee said it was "a great day. Secretary Rollins just confirmed that without the whole milk option, the kids are losing out, and so are the dairy farmers."

Berks County dairy farmer Nelson Troutman chimed in to say that most people don't even realize whole milk is virtually 97% fat free. He brought four of his grandchildren to the event and made sure 97 Milk signs and materials were available in addition to what the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association put out on the 'milk table.'

Walking back to the milkhouse, Secretary Rollins engaged the national and state media.

"You are tracking this, so you know that we are making a lot of changes in Washington and going very quickly under President Trump's leadership and vision," she said.

Asked about the line-by-line review of the 2025-30 Dietary Guidelines draft released last December, Rollins gave details.

"Secretary (Robert F. Jr.) Kennedy and I have been in multiple discussion on this. We are both very committed to a process that is not driven by the lobby... but instead is driven by what is the healthiest food for our famiturn to page 13 lies, and it doesn't have to be a 480-page Dietary Guidelines, which is what we were handed from the last Administration," she said.

"Bobby (Kennedy) and I believe very strongly that what we do with these Dietary Guidelines is a very big first step toward making America healthy again," Rollins added.

While noting the previous work will be acknowledged, she said the bottom line is: "This is not that complicated. It's about good nutritious healthy food from this country's farmers and ranchers that are the best in the world.

It's about moving good nutritious food (through the multitude of food programs) by getting food closer to the people in a way that hopefully reverses what we've seen... the trend toward chronic disease, diabetes and other things that on the back side from a health care cost perspective is going to bankrupt our country."

In a follow-up question, Sec. Rollins talked abou how flexibility may play out for school nutrition programs, first in making whole milk choice available, but also in addressing the way schools are hamstrung from providing nutrient dense foods

Nelson Troutman of Richland with his grandchildren Nolan, Madalyn, Coco, and Jocelyn brought the Whole Milk signs and materials. "We have to get this done," said Nelson, whose grandchildren have grown up a lot since the 97 Milk movement started with Nelson painting a round bale Drink Whole Milk 97% Fat Free in December 2018.

that contain saturated fat.

"1000 percent more flexibility is what we want," she said, noting that within the first hour of being sworn in as the 33rd Agriculture Secretary, she sent a letter to all of the governors, Republican and Democrat.

"Our letter said that this is a new day at USDA, that we believe in the laboratories of democracy that our Founding Fathers envisioned under the Constitution that the government closest to the people is the government that's most effective," Rollins reflected. "No offense to all of my people at USDA, but why are we just deciding what food to get into schools, and how to feed kids that are nutritionally challenged."

The Secretary's challenge to governors is: "Bring us innovation; bring us ideas; tell us how you can better and more effectively get that good nutritious food into the schools in an efficient way."

On April 10, she had nine governors from both parties on a Zoom conference. "We talked about what they're already doing to innovate, and we talked about them getting us waivers, and we'll meet them," she said.

May 15 is last day to submit applications for National Dairy Board Scholarships

ROSEMONT, Ill. – Applications are being accepted now for college scholarships that are awarded by America's dairy farmers and importers through the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board (NDB). Completed applications must be received no later than May 15 at 11:59 p.m. CST.

Eleven scholarships worth $2500 each will be awarded, in addition to a $3500 James H. Loper Jr. Memorial Scholarship to one outstanding recipient.

Undergraduate students in their sophomore through senior year for the 2025-2026 academic school year and enrolled in college/ university programs that emphasize dairy are eligible. Relevant majors may include communications/public relations, journalism, marketing, business, economics, nutrition, food science and agriculture education.

Scholarships are awarded based on academic achievement, an interest in a career in a dairy-related discipline, and demonstrated leadership, initiative and integrity. Candidates must complete an application form, submit an official transcript of all college courses, and write a short statement describing their career aspirations, dairy-related activities and work experiences.

Applications can be found at dairycheckoff.com/about-us/scholarship

Questions about the program can be submitted to ndbscholarships@dairy.org

Staph aureus – you have it!

Hoard's Dairyman article Jan 2025: Staph aureus is a subclinical threat

"Mastitis can be caused by many pathogens, but if you ask any dairy veterinarian or farmer which is the most damaging, the odds are good that their response will be Staphylococcus aureus." "Staph. aureus is especially dangerous because it persistently infects

Dr. Justine Britten, Pres. Udder Health Systems, NMC board: "In my personal experience, every dairy is impacted to some degree by Staph. aureus," and "If Staph. Animal monitoring systems change the reproduction game tems are a trusted solution for accurate heat detection, but their impact extends beyond that. By improving overall reproductive efficiency, these systems boost pregnancy rates, cut costs and help dairies maximize profitability.

toring systems are only for dairies that need help with heat detection," says Don Gilberg, milking equipment sales manager with GEA. "In reality, they're a precision management tool that can take well-run dairies from good reproduction performance to great."

"A common misconception is that moni-multiple heat expression behaviors – standing, mounting, chin resting, sniffing and increased activity – providing objective data for confident breeding decisions.

Many farms have been able to significantly reduce timed AI programs.

I work with still uses a synchronization program for cows that are not detectably in heat," savs Gilberg, "However, with the addition of a monitoring system, they have reduced their shots by 50% or more, reducing overall costs and improving pregnancy rates. Their 21-day pregnancy rate now averages 35% – a 10% jump since adopting a monitoring system."

youngstock and seeing reproductive gains. A 750-cow dairy in Vermont puts GEA $\textit{CowScout}^{\scriptscriptstyle\mathsf{TM}}$ collars on their heifers one month before their target breeding age.

"This farm monitors the heifers' natural cycles, then once a heifer is confirmed pregnant, they use the collar for another heifer." says Gilberg. "They maximize the value of every collar while ensuring their high-value replacements are bred quickly."

By reducing reliance on synchronization protocols, the farm has lowered their hormone use and increased their pregnancy rate by about five percentage points year over year.

3. Empowering employees and improving efficiency

A two-site, 8000-cow dairy and a longtime CowScout monitoring system user has seen lower employee turnover, easier training and management.

"Now employees have tasks that are easier to learn," says Gilberg. "Instead of relying on human heat detection a few times a day, they learn the system and how to check a list for heats, which also shows the optimal time to breed.'

Using a monitoring system with animal location can make breeding even more efficient. Rather than disrupting pens to find cows, the system locates and transmits the exact position of single or multiple cows to your mobile device or computer.

"If you're used to locking up cows and tailchalking them daily, monitoring systems eliminate this step – saving time and labor costs," says Gilberg.

Monitoring systems are more than just heat detection – they're a comprehensive tool for improving herd fertility, optimizing labor and increasing reproductive success.

Spring Dairy Carousel boasts numerous shows and contests

HAMBURG, N.Y. — The excitement was clear and the spirits were high as the New York Holstein Association kicked off the New York Spring Dairy Carousel at the Erie County Fairgrounds in Hamburg on March 20-24.

This first show of the 2025 season saw entries from 15 states, Ontario and Quebec. More than 50 volunteers, the Erie County Fairgrounds staff and numerous sponsors ensured that this show went off without a hitch.

The first two days were devoted to Junior activities and shows sponsored by Feedworks USA. Nearly 100 Juniors participated in the judging contest led by Junior Executive Committee Judging chair, Alexis Schultz. Adult mentors, Carrie Edsall, Kevin Ziemba and Doug Waterman, conducted a judging workshop before the participants judged 4 classes, answered questions and gave reasons on two classes.

Some 116 juniors competed for the champion showman honors. Addison Brown was awarded the prize for master showman, received $500 sponsored by Meghan McGarr Lampman. Matthew Richenberg was named reserve master showman, receiving a $300 check from Lampman. Jake Buckley was named honorable mention master showman.

Judge Cassie Menendez placed 108 entries in the Northeast Spring National Junior Holstein Show.

Isaac Folts with Tusc-Vu Avalanche Cali-ET came out on top and was awarded the banner for grand champion. The reserve title went to Cherry-Lor-W Ripples-Red-ET owned by Phillip McCormick and Bethany Eberlin.

In the International Junior Jersey Show, Menendez placed 86 entries. Nicole Arrowsmith, at the halter of Hillacres Lala Shleeping

Grain markets. Why in an environment with 125% tariffs on ag are only days away from commodities exported to China would markets rally? Sitting here planting. USDA estimates in mid-April, old-crop May corn jumped back toward the highest levels since late February and are pushing close to $4.90 per bushel. November soybeans, meanwhile, have raced back toward $10.40 per bushel – the highest levels in six weeks.

First, USDA reported tighter balance sheets. Take corn. The latest World Agricultural Supply and Demand report for April pegged U.S. corn stocks at 1.465 billion bushels, down from the March estimate and below market expectations for 1.510 billion. Critically, USDA ratcheted up export shipments to 2.550 billion – a 100-million-bushel increase – to reflect the strong bookings to start the year.

Second, the U.S. dollar has weakened. This makes U.S. exports more attractive in an international buyer's home currency. Even if a tariff is in place, the decline in currency might be enough to make up for at least a portion of the tax, keeping shipments flowing.

Third, managed money and speculators are nervous in this environment. With the S&P experiencing dramatic volatility, we've noticed quite a bit of outside money shifting from equities into commodities. This influx of money is helping to lift corn and soybean futures.

How does the trade situation fold into all this? On one hand, the U.S.-China trade spat does indeed put U.S. soybean exports at risk. China bought nearly 1 billion bushels of soybeans from the U.S. in 2023, roughly 21% of total U.S. production. However, with products covered by the USMCA still exempt from additional tariffs, major concerns around trade flows between the U.S., Mexico and Canada are shelved.

At the same time, trade scuffles between Canada and China are creating some canola opportunities for U.S. dairy producers. More specifically, China recently placed 100% tariffs on Canadian canola, stifling demand from one of Canada's key markets. Ultimately, that is keeping more canola meal looking for outlets in North America at lower price points.

What about new crop? Grain producers in parts of the corn belt

U.S. producers will plant 95.236 million acres of corn in 2025, a 5% increase from last year. Soybean acres lost some ground, with expected acreage down 4% year-over-year to 83.495 million in 2025. But as we all know, a lot can happen between now and harvest.

How could all this noise impact the Northeast dairy producer? Our Eastern corn and soybean meal basis can be affected by several different factors: transportation disruptions, renewable fuel demand and margins, plant shutdowns, trade, local weather, etc. Corn has been flowing from New York to Pennsylvania for livestock feed all winter long. Bird flu is having a minimal impact on regional flocks, so feed demand for chickens has not slowed. Soybean crush and ethanol facilities have also been running very busy schedules. Soy crush margins, however, have been poor for the past few months so we may start to see some shutdowns sooner rather than later.

There are many ways producers can look to manage feed price risk around volatile market movements. Managing futures prices separate from your basis can provide more flexibility to feed purchasing. Northeast basis is much more susceptible to whiplash-like movements because of proximity to Canada and major port systems. Work with your feed buying advisors and vendors to help follow this movement.

Regarding the futures piece of this equation, there are few different tools to choose from: Outright buying your feed at a cash or flat price if basis makes sense, pricing futures with a vendor and waiting to book basis later, or buying futures/options in a CME brokerage account. All have their pros and cons. Reach out to your profit team to assess your feed buying choices.

The risk of loss trading commodity futures and options can be substantial. Investors should carefully consider the inherent risks in light of their financial condition. Full-Sisters to: 525HO154 HERITAGE PP-RED

JA-BOB REX HOLLI PP-RED-ET 2yr proj. 305d 22,642 4.3 fat 3.4 protein

JA-BOB REX HELENA PP-RED-ET 2yr proj. 305d 23,868 3.8 fat 3.2 protein

JA-BOB RX HOLLY P-RED-ET 2yr proj. 305d 24,955 4.0 fat 2.9 protein These cows sold at the Ja-Bob Holsteins dispersal in November 2023 as heifers. An astute young dairyman in Pennsylvania by the name of Duane Stoltzfus knew what he was looking for. . . and when these heifers entered the ring, he bought them--1, 2, 3!

He couldn't be happier with the results, and is currently working at proliferating their genetics in his herd. All three are projected to finish records that exceed herd average.

These
daughters aptly display
why this proven sire continues to be an abiding favorite for many dairymen!
